

For the year ending June 30, 2018

2018 Annual Report

From the President of the Board of Trustees, Gus Schloesser

Blessings and challenges seem to be a good way to look at our organization. I'd like to look at our blessings, and they have been significant. They reflect the work being done both nationally and internationally. Through the generosity of our membership, our finances have stabilized to the point that we are finally in the black this year. Donations to Emotions Anonymous International (EAI) are up, and we are grateful for this support. While it is difficult to get an accurate picture of how many groups there are, a blessing is that EA is not in the numbers game. Our goal has been and continues to be there when people need us. I count this as a blessing! There are groups who continue to reach out to men and women in prison, another blessing. Internationally, EA groups are taking shape. Materials are being translated to serve individuals in their native language. Another blessing. EA has created new material, still another blessing. Blessings surround us, and are truly gifts. We have not, however, been without challenges as well. We've seen groups close for any number of reasons, which is always disappointing. Generally groups close because of lack of members or lack of individuals willing and able to take on the role of leadership. However when one group closes, another opens. A challenge turned blessing. The EAI has seen staffing changes which can be a challenge but we are now staffed with people who have the right skills for the job. Another blessing for which we are grateful. We are currently challenged to find individuals willing to meet the expectations of time and commitment to serve as Trustees. We welcome anyone willing and open to serving as a Trustee to step forward and express interest in this position. Despite everything, your

From the Executive Director, Elaine Weber Nelson

It has been a good year here at EA. We have seen the results of encouraging members to take more ownership of the program in many ways, by joining committees, writing or revising literature, contributing financially, starting new groups or working to improve their existing one. We are seeing the fruits of laboring over technology upgrades and reviewing the overall system of how we manage the administrative and programmatic elements of this program. I am very pleased that we are able to report positive financial reports this year for the first time in a very long time. This bodes well for the ongoing life of the program and I believe it sets us up well to be able to do even more to encourage more individuals to join or start groups. It feels, for the first time since I have been Executive Director, that EA is ready to really take hold of some growth not only in the United States but throughout the world. This would not be possible without the hard work of the Board and all of the membership. Thank you to each and every person who has made EA stronger through your efforts.

Highlights

- > Created guidelines for Group Inventory & Best Practices for healthy groups
- > Contemplation questions added to pamphlets to provide additional reflection material
- > New foreign language materials
- > Emphasis on spiritual, not religious, focus
- > 14% increase in U.S. groups giving to EAI
- > 22% more groups gave from outside the U.S.

Board of Trustees have worked hard this year and I count this as a blessing! None of what we've done would have been possible were it not for you the members of Emotions Anonymous who have supported us in our work, and we are grateful.

Book & Literature Committee Update

Through efforts by volunteers and staff, work in the area of books and literature is progressing. Several existing pamphlets have been enhanced. We've discovered that these pamphlets are improved by designing new formats and adding discussion questions and through adding illustrations or examples.

Additional new pamphlets have been written and approved and are available. These pamphlets have a clear emphasis on the work of our Higher Power to bring health, healing, and an improved sense of well-being in our emotional and relational lives. We're focusing more and more on how we can do more than just survive. In fact, we can even thrive in our daily living, as we work the program to be best of our ability.

In terms of sale of books and literature, there is a noticeable increase in the number of orders being processed through the EAI office. This helpful movement of our inventory is making a difference in the lives of the people receiving this material and it helps our financial bottom-line, as well.

Finance Committee Update

This year's EA financial report has a more hopeful theme to it than recent years. It's an exciting story to tell - with numbers! It has been quite some time since we've reported to the EA fellowship that we're heading in the right direction when it comes to our budget. In previous years we've been dipping into reserves in order to meet expenses. We knew that this plan of deficit-operating would not work for long. Through a wonderful increase in the money being given by individual and group donations, we've really seen a good result at year-end. As we put the word out to the different groups in our fellowship that EA had been struggling financially, people have responded graciously and generously. Other changes that have helped us to have a good result at year-end include watching operational expenses, cutting costs where we can, and "doing more with less" in terms of fewer staff hours and utilizing more technology (i.e. email instead of just sending mail with postage - free zoom and skype calls instead of the conference call costs) - to save additional money. We are grateful, as a finance committee, for your support in this area of financial management.
